

PURE FOOD AND PERFECT DRUGS

Uncle Sam's New Law Continues to Be Something of a Puzzler.

WHISKEY MEN SADLY AT SEA

Virginia Wholesale Druggists Approve Law and Will Obey It to the Letter.

Publications concerning the new pure drugs and pure food law, an act of Congress which went into effect on January 1st, attracted the attention of dealers of drugs, foodstuffs and whiskies, and the buyers and consumers of the same, and was much talked of on the streets yesterday. Several of the wholesale druggists said they did not endorse the views and sentiments of one dealer who was quoted in these columns. One of the most prominent of the wholesalers declared to a Times-Dispatch man yesterday afternoon:

"I am speaking now for the wholesale druggists of Richmond, and I think for the whole State of Virginia, when I assure you that we do not wish to be understood as endorsing in its entirety the view given in your paper this morning by the druggist who was quoted."

"The fact is that these wholesale druggists, acting through their State Club have requested me to get The Times-Dispatch to modify the statements in this morning's paper concerning the act of Congress so far as it relates to the drug business. The views there expressed by one of our number, perhaps, are not the views of the others. I am sure, certainly not the views of the large majority of the wholesale druggists of Virginia."

The Law Is a Good One.

"The act itself is a good one, by us as one which is and has been for a long time very necessary, because of the large number of patent medicines placed before the public through the means of widespread advertisements, setting forth claims that cannot be substantiated. The law requires that any medicine that contains dangerous habit-forming drugs shall be specified on their labels in plain type for the benefit of the public. It also requires that articles sold under a recognized name shall comply with the fixed standards for each particular article."

"Naturally such a law, in order to accomplish its purpose, brings some temporary hardships with it; but the wholesale druggists of Richmond and Virginia are doing all in their power to comply strictly with the new law, and it is hoped that in a very short time everything will be working smoothly and advantageously under the new conditions."

States Should Unite.

"It is the intention of the wholesale druggists of Virginia to put out nothing that fails to comply in every respect with the new law. We believe it to be a good law in the long run, and we only hope that a similar one will be enacted by the Legislature of Virginia and the Legislatures of all the States, so that it may be general in its application, and in no way interfered with by the good old doctrine of States' rights or anything else."

"The man you interviewed yesterday also erred in the statement that no funds are available for the enforcement of the law, and he will find this out if he tries to evade it. It is true that Congress did not make a special appropriation for this purpose, but early in its session in December it did authorize Secretary Wilson, October did not amount to anything. It was merely an act modifying the stringency of the requirement for labeling goods already manufactured. It simply allows large manufacturers of proprietary medicines to have the labeling done by their agents wherever the medicines may now be, instead of having them reshipped to the place of manufacture, there to be labeled, and gives them until October to do this work in this slower and less expensive way."

"Whiskey Men Puzzled. The whiskey dealers seem to be more puzzled than the druggists. They are at sea and in more trouble concerning the law than anybody else."

"To use the language of one of them, 'they do not know where they are at, and can't tell when they are dealers in whiskey or when they are dealers in an unnamed something that may be called 'Sund' or any old thing.'"

"The law, as it now stands, says whenever a man offers for sale anything that is blended or mixed he must call it by some other name, and so label it. What to name it is the question. Under the law nothing but the pure stuff is whiskey, and the Secretary of the Agricultural Department has been asked to name the other stuff. It has not yet christened it, and in the meantime the whiskey dealers are resting on their oars, but trying to comply with the law as best they know how under the circumstances."

23!

(A Poem by Ourselves.)
All lazy waiters and all stay-laters!

Your space is keenly needed, we decree;

No use resisting, turning or twisting,

For each of you it's sternly '23!'

Both rhyme and reason urge you to take prompt advantage of our notable

Suit and Overcoat sale.

$18, $20, $22.50 grades, now $14.75.

"That's All."

Jacobs & Levy

at sea and in more trouble concerning the law than anybody else. To use the language of one of them, 'they do not know where they are at, and can't tell when they are dealers in whiskey or when they are dealers in an unnamed something that may be called 'Sund' or any old thing.'"

The law, as it now stands, says whenever a man offers for sale anything that is blended or mixed he must call it by some other name, and so label it. What to name it is the question. Under the law nothing but the pure stuff is whiskey, and the Secretary of the Agricultural Department has been asked to name the other stuff. It has not yet christened it, and in the meantime the whiskey dealers are resting on their oars, but trying to comply with the law as best they know how under the circumstances."

The Law Is a Good One.

"The act itself is a good one, by us as one which is and has been for a long time very necessary, because of the large number of patent medicines placed before the public through the means of widespread advertisements, setting forth claims that cannot be substantiated. The law requires that any medicine that contains dangerous habit-forming drugs shall be specified on their labels in plain type for the benefit of the public. It also requires that articles sold under a recognized name shall comply with the fixed standards for each particular article."

"Naturally such a law, in order to accomplish its purpose, brings some temporary hardships with it; but the wholesale druggists of Richmond and Virginia are doing all in their power to comply strictly with the new law, and it is hoped that in a very short time everything will be working smoothly and advantageously under the new conditions."

"Whiskey Men Puzzled. The whiskey dealers seem to be more puzzled than the druggists. They are at sea and in more trouble concerning the law than anybody else."

"To use the language of one of them, 'they do not know where they are at, and can't tell when they are dealers in whiskey or when they are dealers in an unnamed something that may be called 'Sund' or any old thing.'"

The law, as it now stands, says whenever a man offers for sale anything that is blended or mixed he must call it by some other name, and so label it. What to name it is the question. Under the law nothing but the pure stuff is whiskey, and the Secretary of the Agricultural Department has been asked to name the other stuff. It has not yet christened it, and in the meantime the whiskey dealers are resting on their oars, but trying to comply with the law as best they know how under the circumstances."

The Law Is a Good One.

"The act itself is a good one, by us as one which is and has been for a long time very necessary, because of the large number of patent medicines placed before the public through the means of widespread advertisements, setting forth claims that cannot be substantiated. The law requires that any medicine that contains dangerous habit-forming drugs shall be specified on their labels in plain type for the benefit of the public. It also requires that articles sold under a recognized name shall comply with the fixed standards for each particular article."

"Naturally such a law, in order to accomplish its purpose, brings some temporary hardships with it; but the wholesale druggists of Richmond and Virginia are doing all in their power to comply strictly with the new law, and it is hoped that in a very short time everything will be working smoothly and advantageously under the new conditions."

"Whiskey Men Puzzled. The whiskey dealers seem to be more puzzled than the druggists. They are at sea and in more trouble concerning the law than anybody else."

"To use the language of one of them, 'they do not know where they are at, and can't tell when they are dealers in whiskey or when they are dealers in an unnamed something that may be called 'Sund' or any old thing.'"

The law, as it now stands, says whenever a man offers for sale anything that is blended or mixed he must call it by some other name, and so label it. What to name it is the question. Under the law nothing but the pure stuff is whiskey, and the Secretary of the Agricultural Department has been asked to name the other stuff. It has not yet christened it, and in the meantime the whiskey dealers are resting on their oars, but trying to comply with the law as best they know how under the circumstances."

The Law Is a Good One.

"The act itself is a good one, by us as one which is and has been for a long time very necessary, because of the large number of patent medicines placed before the public through the means of widespread advertisements, setting forth claims that cannot be substantiated. The law requires that any medicine that contains dangerous habit-forming drugs shall be specified on their labels in plain type for the benefit of the public. It also requires that articles sold under a recognized name shall comply with the fixed standards for each particular article."

"Naturally such a law, in order to accomplish its purpose, brings some temporary hardships with it; but the wholesale druggists of Richmond and Virginia are doing all in their power to comply strictly with the new law, and it is hoped that in a very short time everything will be working smoothly and advantageously under the new conditions."

"Whiskey Men Puzzled. The whiskey dealers seem to be more puzzled than the druggists. They are at sea and in more trouble concerning the law than anybody else."

"To use the language of one of them, 'they do not know where they are at, and can't tell when they are dealers in whiskey or when they are dealers in an unnamed something that may be called 'Sund' or any old thing.'"

The law, as it now stands, says whenever a man offers for sale anything that is blended or mixed he must call it by some other name, and so label it. What to name it is the question. Under the law nothing but the pure stuff is whiskey, and the Secretary of the Agricultural Department has been asked to name the other stuff. It has not yet christened it, and in the meantime the whiskey dealers are resting on their oars, but trying to comply with the law as best they know how under the circumstances."

The Law Is a Good One.

"The act itself is a good one, by us as one which is and has been for a long time very necessary, because of the large number of patent medicines placed before the public through the means of widespread advertisements, setting forth claims that cannot be substantiated. The law requires that any medicine that contains dangerous habit-forming drugs shall be specified on their labels in plain type for the benefit of the public. It also requires that articles sold under a recognized name shall comply with the fixed standards for each particular article."

"Naturally such a law, in order to accomplish its purpose, brings some temporary hardships with it; but the wholesale druggists of Richmond and Virginia are doing all in their power to comply strictly with the new law, and it is hoped that in a very short time everything will be working smoothly and advantageously under the new conditions."

"Whiskey Men Puzzled. The whiskey dealers seem to be more puzzled than the druggists. They are at sea and in more trouble concerning the law than anybody else."

"To use the language of one of them, 'they do not know where they are at, and can't tell when they are dealers in whiskey or when they are dealers in an unnamed something that may be called 'Sund' or any old thing.'"

The law, as it now stands, says whenever a man offers for sale anything that is blended or mixed he must call it by some other name, and so label it. What to name it is the question. Under the law nothing but the pure stuff is whiskey, and the Secretary of the Agricultural Department has been asked to name the other stuff. It has not yet christened it, and in the meantime the whiskey dealers are resting on their oars, but trying to comply with the law as best they know how under the circumstances."

The Law Is a Good One.

"The act itself is a good one, by us as one which is and has been for a long time very necessary, because of the large number of patent medicines placed before the public through the means of widespread advertisements, setting forth claims that cannot be substantiated. The law requires that any medicine that contains dangerous habit-forming drugs shall be specified on their labels in plain type for the benefit of the public. It also requires that articles sold under a recognized name shall comply with the fixed standards for each particular article."

"Naturally such a law, in order to accomplish its purpose, brings some temporary hardships with it; but the wholesale druggists of Richmond and Virginia are doing all in their power to comply strictly with the new law, and it is hoped that in a very short time everything will be working smoothly and advantageously under the new conditions."

"Whiskey Men Puzzled. The whiskey dealers seem to be more puzzled than the druggists. They are at sea and in more trouble concerning the law than anybody else."

"To use the language of one of them, 'they do not know where they are at, and can't tell when they are dealers in whiskey or when they are dealers in an unnamed something that may be called 'Sund' or any old thing.'"

The law, as it now stands, says whenever a man offers for sale anything that is blended or mixed he must call it by some other name, and so label it. What to name it is the question. Under the law nothing but the pure stuff is whiskey, and the Secretary of the Agricultural Department has been asked to name the other stuff. It has not yet christened it, and in the meantime the whiskey dealers are resting on their oars, but trying to comply with the law as best they know how under the circumstances."

The Law Is a Good One.

LARGE ISSUE OF BONDS PROPOSED

Ordinance Introduced for Sale of $480,000 of Four Per Cent. Securities.

TO MEET ANNEXATION TERMS

Money Required to Pay Portion of Debt and Improve Suburban Section.

At the suggestion of Mayor McCarthy, an ordinance prepared under his instructions was introduced in the Common Council last night providing for an issue of $480,000 of registered or convertible coupon bonds, dated January 1, 1907, and to run thirty-four years, and bearing interest at the rate of 4 per centum.

The money to be derived from this issue of bonds is to be devoted to specific purposes set out in the ordinance. These include the payment for the public schoolhouses and other county property acquired, and for the payment of the portion of the county's debt assumed by the city under the terms of annexation. Of the total amount, $125,331 is to be set aside to meet expenditures for improvements within the new territory, such sum being 12 per cent of assessed valuation of the annexed plus the sum required to pay for the property and the proportion of debt assumed. The ordinance will be passed at the regular meeting of the Council next Monday.

Session in Detail.

As soon as the Council got down to work the call for the meeting was read. Thereupon a communication in the form of a joint resolution, presented by the Mayor was read, and a moment later it was offered by Councilman Cannon and passed without dissent.

This joint resolution, stripped of its legal verbiage, directs the Finance Committee to note some provision for the reimbursement of the county of Henrico of the proportion of the debt of the county which it is proper for the city to assume.

To provide for the payment to the county of the school houses and other public buildings acquired by the city.

To recommend what should be the system of taxation and of public improvements within the annexed territory.

To ascertain and report what is the debt of the town of Palmyra, which the city must assume, and in what manner this assumption shall be made.

The Ordinance Committee is directed to recommend whether the annexed territory should be organized into wards, or attached to existing wards, and what territory should be attached to existing wards, what provision shall be made for the transfer of voters within the annexed territory or what new precincts, if any, should be established for their convenience.

The Street Committee is instructed to investigate and report, recommending what increased force, if any, is necessary in the Engineer's Department by reason of the necessity for plating the annexed territory, and doing other work therein, what grades should be established on the streets and alleys of the new city territory, and what recommendations, if any, they deem important in connection with the improvement and development of the new territory.

This was introduced under suspension of the rules by Mr. Cannon and adopted, as stated.

The Mayor's Ordinance.

Mr. Pollard, subcommittee of the Finance Committee, then under suspension of the rules, introduced a preamble and ordinance, prepared by the Mayor, relating to the issue of bonds, necessitated by the terms of annexation.

The preamble recites the steps in annexation and the provision for setting apart an amount equal to 12 per cent of assessed realty values of the new territory, after which the city's debt becomes applicable. It states the assessed value of realty annexed at $3,940,238, of which 12 per cent is $472,831, and deducting from this the debt of Palmyra of $125,331, a net amount of $347,500 remains. This sum, it is stated, is to be set aside for school property annexed and $19,429.28, the proportion of the county's debt which the city must assume, making the total amount necessary to be provided at once $366,929.28.

Then follows an ordinance proper, which instructs the Auditor to issue $480,000 of 4 per cent, thirty-four year registered, or coupon convertible bonds, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to paying the amounts for which the city is liable, and the remaining $428,931 to be set aside for the improvement of the new territory. Provision is made for creating a sinking fund and interest and redemption account, the same to be devoted to meeting interest on bonds and redeeming same from time to time. The entire redemption account shall remain on deposit or invested, and the interest thereon reinvested until 1941, or until the bonds shall have matured or been paid.

The ordinance was referred to the Finance Committee which will consider and report upon it at the meeting of the Council next Monday night.

Mr. Pollard also offered a joint resolution relative to setting aside of $3,750 to be placed to the credit of the sinking fund for interest and redemption purposes. This was referred to the Finance Committee. The Council then adjourned.

ANNUAL ADDRESS.

Much Interest in Coming of Mr. Ford to Richmond.

The Virginia Historical Society was organized on December 29, 1831, at a meeting held in the hall of the House of Delegates. It has since that time been intimately associated with that famous old room, and it has been the scene of many notable addresses. By the courtesy of Governor Swanson, the society is allowed to use the new hall, and on Friday night, 8:30 P. M., in the twenty-sixth year of the society, another address of great importance will be delivered. Mr. Washington C. Ford, of the Congressional Library, will speak at Virginia 1831—the Birth of the Ways, and will treat of a most important and critical era in the history of our State and country.

There is, of course, no charge for admission, and the public are cordially invited to attend. Admittance will be at the Capitol Square by the Grace Street gate and thus avoid the clay of the new embankments. A granolithic walk leads from this gate to the eastern entrance of the Capitol.

Elba Council.

The following officers of Elba Council, No. 99, Royal Arcanum, were installed by Grand Secretary Harry Kamy, assisted by Grand Guide Minnie Polkes on Tuesday night: A. L. Hobson, regent; W. F. Sale, vice-regent; Cass Johnson, orator; C. W. Tyler, secretary; William Galloway, collector; C. E. Richardson, treasurer; James B. Angie, guide; John R. Tyree, chaplain; Joseph C. Adams, warden, and C. H. Houchens, sentry.

BROTHER SHOT SISTER'S SUITOR

Tragedy Occurs at Wedding Reception of Prominent Georgia Family.

HOT WORDS AND PISTOL SHOT

Harvey Hill Spoke to Former Fiancee, Whose Brother and Father Objected.

ATLANTA, GA., January 2.—A special from LaGrange, Ga., says:

Dr. F. M. Ridley, of that place, was shot and seriously wounded to-day by Harvey Hill, of Atlanta. The shooting occurred at the home of C. B. Ridley, where the marriage of Miss Elsie Ridley, a cousin of the wounded man, had been celebrated, and as the guests were pressing forward to tender their congratulations. The trouble appears to have arisen over a personal matter, but Hill refused to talk, and the wounded man was unable to. The wounds are reported not to be necessarily fatal.

Both men are well known in Atlanta. Harvey Hill belongs to one of the most prominent families in the State; he is a son of Solicitor-General C. D. Hill and a grandson of Former United States Senator with Miss Ridley. He is prominent in social and political circles, having been president of the Young Men's Democratic League of this city. Dr. Ridley is the son of Dr. F. M. Ridley, of LaGrange, one of the leading physicians of Georgia and chief surgeon of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad. Hill is about thirty years old and Ridley about twenty-three.

Cause of Shooting.

It is stated to-day that the cause of the shooting of Dr. F. M. Ridley, Jr., by Harvey Hill was the result of an attempt by Mr. Hill to engage in conversation with Miss Ridley, a sister of the man who was shot, some time ago. Hill was forbidden by the elder Ridley to speak to his daughter, and when Hill did so to-day, the brother interfered. Hot words passing, Ridley struck Hill, and the shooting resulted. It is understood that Hill and Miss Ridley were engaged to be married and the ceremony was to have taken place about the present time, but the engagement was broken off.

The two families are related, the uncle of Dr. Ridley having married the aunt of Mr. Hill, and the families have been close friends for years.

Both families stand with the best in the State, and the two young men are exceedingly well known. Hill is a slight, delicate-looking man, while Ridley was one of the star football players of the South a few years ago, and captain for two years of the University of Georgia eleven.

The Street Committee is instructed to investigate and report, recommending what increased force, if any, is necessary in the Engineer's Department by reason of the necessity for plating the annexed territory, and doing other work therein, what grades should be established on the streets and alleys of the new city territory, and what recommendations, if any, they deem important in connection with the improvement and development of the new territory.

This was introduced under suspension of the rules by Mr. Cannon and adopted, as stated.

The Mayor's Ordinance.

Mr. Pollard, subcommittee of the Finance Committee, then under suspension of the rules, introduced a preamble and ordinance, prepared by the Mayor, relating to the issue of bonds, necessitated by the terms of annexation.

The preamble recites the steps in annexation and the provision for setting apart an amount equal to 12 per cent of assessed realty values of the new territory, after which the city's debt becomes applicable. It states the assessed value of realty annexed at $3,940,238, of which 12 per cent is $472,831, and deducting from this the debt of Palmyra of $125,331, a net amount of $347,500 remains. This sum, it is stated, is to be set aside for school property annexed and $19,429.28, the proportion of the county's debt which the city must assume, making the total amount necessary to be provided at once $366,929.28.

Then follows an ordinance proper, which instructs the Auditor to issue $480,000 of 4 per cent, thirty-four year registered, or coupon convertible bonds, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to paying the amounts for which the city is liable, and the remaining $428,931 to be set aside for the improvement of the new territory. Provision is made for creating a sinking fund and interest and redemption account, the same to be devoted to meeting interest on bonds and redeeming same from time to time. The entire redemption account shall remain on deposit or invested, and the interest thereon reinvested until 1941, or until the bonds shall have matured or been paid.

The ordinance was referred to the Finance Committee which will consider and report upon it at the meeting of the Council next Monday night.

Mr. Pollard also offered a joint resolution relative to setting aside of $3,750 to be placed to the credit of the sinking fund for interest and redemption purposes. This was referred to the Finance Committee. The Council then adjourned.

ANNUAL ADDRESS.

Much Interest in Coming of Mr. Ford to Richmond.

The Virginia Historical Society was organized on December 29, 1831, at a meeting held in the hall of the House of Delegates. It has since that time been intimately associated with that famous old room, and it has been the scene of many notable addresses. By the courtesy of Governor Swanson, the society is allowed to use the new hall, and on Friday night, 8:30 P. M., in the twenty-sixth year of the society, another address of great importance will be delivered. Mr. Washington C. Ford, of the Congressional Library, will speak at Virginia 1831—the Birth of the Ways, and will treat of a most important and critical era in the history of our State and country.

There is, of course, no charge for admission, and the public are cordially invited to attend. Admittance will be at the Capitol Square by the Grace Street gate and thus avoid the clay of the new embankments. A granolithic walk leads from this gate to the eastern entrance of the Capitol.

Elba Council.

The following officers of Elba Council, No. 99, Royal Arcanum, were installed by Grand Secretary Harry Kamy, assisted by Grand Guide Minnie Polkes on Tuesday night: A. L. Hobson, regent; W. F. Sale, vice-regent; Cass Johnson, orator; C. W. Tyler, secretary; William Galloway, collector; C. E. Richardson, treasurer; James B. Angie, guide; John R. Tyree, chaplain; Joseph C. Adams, warden, and C. H. Houchens, sentry.

A LIVE CHICKEN TIED TO DEAD MAN

Police Have Baffling Mystery in Death of James Thomas, Railway Contractor.

LAD FINDS BODY IN RAVINE

Man Had Then Been Dead Several Hours—Had Two Sons in College.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

DANVILLE, VA., January 2.—Lying in a deep ravine on the suburbs of the city, near the bank of the Dan River, and with a live chicken tied to a button on his coat, the dead body of James M. Thomas, the superintendent of the Lane Brothers railway contractors, was found to-day. The scene of the discovery was in a rather secluded spot, and the body was noticed by a schoolboy crossing the iron bridge some distance above.

The case is a baffling mystery, and whether the man came to his death from natural causes, was murdered, or committed suicide, no one can tell. Thomas was originally from Lexington, N. C., and was a widower. He had been making his home recently in places where he happened to be engaged in work. He came here during Christmas week, and late yesterday was seen near where the body was found in company with three men. All of the party seemed to be drinking, more or less.

Companion Unknown.

All efforts by the police to ascertain who the companions of Thomas were have proven futile, and this is what has led to the suggestion of foul play. He always carried a large roll of money with him, but only twenty cents was found on his body. The body showed no signs of violence, and there was nothing found on it to furnish any clue as to how the man died.

Mr. Thomas was about fifty years of age, and had two sons, who are at college, two married daughters living in Roanoke, and one in Gainesville, Fla. A bank-book and several letters from his children were in the pockets of the dead man. Where the chicken comes in is a puzzle. The feet of the animal were tied to the string securely bound to the button. The fowl was alive and making a desperate fight for liberty when the discovery was made.

The man's body is being held pending further investigation and orders from the family of the victim.

ASK PRESIDENT TO JUDGE BABIES

Jamestown Exposition Management Planning to Have Great Baby Show.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

NORFOLK, VA., January 2.—An international baby show, with President Roosevelt as chief judge and presenter of prizes, will be a feature of the Jamestown Exposition should the President accept the honor, which it is proposed to be held at the exposition grounds.

The plans for the show are now being worked out by exposition officials. It is proposed to have babies from all countries and conditions in life in the competition, and there will be prizes for the finest babies, for the prettiest babies, for the slimmest, best developed, and best formed babies. Mothers of prize babies are deeply interested in the proposition.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Central Young Men's Christian Association was called last night to meet Mr. C. S. Ward, secretary of the international committee, who has been giving his time to building movements. The present fifteen out of the seventeen directors in Richmond. Much time was devoted to the commencement of the laying of the plans for a vigorous building campaign in this city.

The Central Y. M. C. A. has undertaken to raise $20,000 for the erection of a new Y. M. C. A. home on the northeast corner of Seventh and Grace Streets.

Mr. Ward has conducted during the last year campaigns in nineteen cities, in which the total sum raised was $250,000. The building committee here has been in correspondence with Mr. Ward for some time in view of the coming campaign here, and Mr. Ward is expected to join forces with them to complete the fund.

Pushing his campaign in Baltimore, Mr. Ward raised $12,000 in thirty days. Mayor Timanus and Governor Warfield both figured prominently in the campaign, and Mr. Oshun Levering was president of the citizens' committee in Kansas City. Mayor Boardley headed the campaign, and $21,000 was subscribed in thirty days.

BOYS ARRESTED.

Charged With Trespassing on Railway.

Four boys were arrested last night at a late hour by Detective Duke, of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, charged with trespassing on the railroad property. They were found at the Seventeenth Street depot in the act of boarding the trucks of a train.

Their names are: Henry Nunnally, Harry D. Beattie, and Claude Satchfield, and all came from Manchester. Two revolvers were taken from the prisoners.

JACKSON CERTAIN HE WILL WIN HIS CASE

Giles Jackson, director-general of the Colored Jamestown Exposition, will leave for Washington this morning armed with data which he is sure will satisfy the national commission that he and his associates have properly managed the affairs of the concern. He and his board held a conference last night and carefully went over the report prepared from his books, and they say they will be able to show that only $250 of the $100,000 appropriated by the government, has been spent, while Jackson has spent over $11,000 in getting up exhibits.

In giving in his report the name of every person in the United States exhibiting, together with the articles to be exhibited.

HEALTH INSURANCE

The man who insures his life is wise for his family.

The man who insures his health is wise both for his family and himself.

You may insure health by guarding it. It is worth guarding.

At the first attack of disease, which generally approaches through the LIVER and manifests itself in innumerable ways TAKE